In spite of the fact he's rowed 147 miles here to Nanaimo and back-since he left Victoria a week ago, the sprightly oars-man looked as chipper as if he'd just stepped out of a shower,

Positioning his legs against a makeshift stretch board, a fender and a piece of wood, he dipped his overlapping oars and seemed ready to start all over again.

He grinned as a man from the health spa attends took his picture, he fussed until his oars were in the correct position when a press photographer moved in for a shot.

"It would never do to have a seaman caught like that," he quipped.

"I enjoyed every minute of it," he reported, as friends asked for an accounting.

VANCOUVER - Lower mainland railway workers today voted by a show of hands to return to work at midnight tonight after receiving legal advice to stop their week-old defiance of federal back-to-work legislation,

They also voted that if six men charged with defiance of the law receive "so much as a 10-cent fine" they will walk off the job again in unison.

The vote came at noon today at the Coquitlam Sports Centre hockey arena after the six men had their cases adjourned.

Lower mainland railway workers who have defied federal back-to-work legislation for a week were advised to re-turn to work in an orderly fashion on the grounds that "you have proved your point."

A rally of railway workers heard a statement from the joint council of railway unions based on the advice of lawyers hired on Sunday.

FOB the Downtown Area

Serious discussion in city council of public shuttle services which would move people from periphery parking areas to downtown streets and back could lead to some interesting results. Although the idea is still in a preliminary state, such a service — whether by bus, street train or other imaginative means - might do much to solve the city parking problem and lighten the press of city-core automobile traffic. Rapid, cheap - or free transportation from perimeter carpark to business office or shopping. area and return could be the innovation to revolutionize traditional downtown traffic habits.

It is interesting that the city of Seattle has just begun a new transportation service which provides free bus rides in a 105-block area centring on the business district. The experiment, to operate for one year - with predictions that it will become permanent - will cost an estimated $64,000, representing the city's loss of 20-cent fares for the year.

It has been noted in Seattle that much of the traffic congestion in the city's core is caused by automobiles being driven from one parking place to another, with many blocks being circumnavigated while the search goes on. This localized traffic could be eliminated by the free bus service, since many cars would be left outside the centre area. An improvement in downtown air pollution is also expected.

Something along these lines might be of advantage to Victoria. Measured against the cost of parking facilities, street widening and other expenditures, as well as the intangible costs of slowed traffic, time lost in search of parking slots, loss of downtown business as a result of congestion, and other factors, the cost of providing a shuttle service at a minimum fare or without charge in Victoria - the longer bus runs would not be affected - might not prove to be ex-

Certainly, it is interesting that the present council members are open to imaginative suggestions and apparently willing to embark on new ventures. May their initiative carry over into the new council to be elected at the year's end.

Cold Breeze From the Oil Industry

The petroleum industry is predictably screaming from its derricks since the federal government called for a voluntary price freeze on domestic petroleum products until Jan. 30. Considering the 40cent-per-barrel raise on Western Canadian crude oil August 1, which in turn resulted in another two-cent-per-gallon hike in the cost of gasoline, the industry seems to be making much ado about little. In essence the government has simply asked the industry not to raise the price of domestic petroleum products for five months.

That should not be too much to ask of a good corporate citizen which is almost entirely foreignowned. But the oilmen were quick with implied threats, saying that a freeze could reduce exploration, thereby reducing reserves and depleting provincial government revenues. Such warnings are ironic when compared with the recently released federal government energy resources report. The present system of skimming royalties from frontier petroleum developments is inflexible, potentially too liberal to private companies and should be reviewed, the report said.

It also said that governmental involvement in the energy industry is bound to grow, and that policies and controls should be designed to guide long term developments—a statement that cuts both ways. On the one hand the government is ignoring its own report by applying ad hoc policies to the petroleum industry. And conversely the oil industry screams at a five-month freeze when the handwriting is on the wall regarding more government involvement in the petroleum industry, which has had its own way for many years.

CHARLES BARTLETT

Long, Slow Haul in Portugal

LISBON-Liberalizing this seabound little nation, which is what Premier Marcello Caetano has in mind, is like pressing a staid bishop to dance the tango at a parish party.

The prelate knows that if he throws aside his reserve, he may lose more than he gains. So he shuffles a few steps to appease the young while glancing warily at the tight-lipped spinsters in the corner. He looks forward to doing better after the old girls go home.

This is precisely where Caetano finds himself five years after inheriting his post from the austere dictator, Oliveira Salazar. He is, at 67, a modern man held on a short leash by the Salazar survivors - a tight group of venerables with the power and determination to ward off significant change in their lifetimes.

Tight Control

Caetano rules at their whim, for the doughty president of Portugal, a stern octogenarian named Americo Thomaz, is empowered to unseat him with a flourish of his pen. This obliges the premier to adhere closely to the Salazar tradition while he loosens a few bolts in a system which may be too rigid to stand indefinitely against the winds that are blow-

But the structure has stood long enough to rust the bolts. Fifty years of censorship, more than 40 years of oneparty control and educational deprivations have scarcely prepared the Portuguese for democracy. The restraints on free expression and social investment are stiffened by the wars in Africa. A jealous oligarchy, unwilling to share its control of the economy, resists the intrusion of foreign entrepreneurs. Many of the more ambitious, dismayed by the limits to their horizons, have been voting with their feet. The mass migrations of Portuguese workers to the industrial nations have brought some blessings to the homeland - large sums of money come home and the expatriates learn skills abroad. But the exodus is no vote of confidence in Portugal's future and the pinch of the labor supply has begun to be painful.

So Caetano is taking what steps he can to warm the home fires. He is hurrying the construction of a huge new port complex south of Lisbon and softening the old hostility toward foreign investment. He is building highways and attempting to sweeten the pension system. When Salazar was approached many years ago for funds for a choir, he re-'How can I help those who sing when I have nothing for those who cry.' Today Caetano is concerned with assistance to the poor.

He would gain leverage from the pressures of a well-organized, non-Communist opposition, but it does not exist. A handful of opposition deputies sit in the national assembly, but they are mostly rich dilettantes, men derided for "thinking left and living right." An association of moderate dissenters was formed three years ago, but a poorly attended conference in July was the most recent sign that it has not gained impetus.

Unstable Position

So the Communist left is the hardcore opposition and the right swells it into a bogeyman to justify their tight control. Moscow broadcasts, urging Portuguese youth to rise against their repressors, feed fears that Communism will be the consequence of any real deference to democratic principles.

So Caetano perhaps deserves more credit than he gets for creating a climate in which people talk more freely, for preaching that life is constant adaptation and for confronting the Salazar bans against progress. The secret police are still around and people can still be held without charges. But all agree that the iron hand has learned a lighter

Life in Portugal is perhaps sweet enough and the faith of the Portuguese is perhaps deep enough to summon the tolerance of a slow transformation. But there can be no doubt that it will come

il and National Interest

WASHINGTON-Relations between Canada and the U.S. are becoming somewhat sticky with oil.

U.S. officials say they are concerned about the difficulty in talking to Ottawa on the subject. They are also concerned about what they see as a nationalistic attitude building in Canada.

A treasury department official described recent Ottawa announcements on oil policy as "what seems to be increasing independence—isolation from the world oil shortage."

U.S. attempts to strike a co-operative policy of sharing and swapping oil resources with Canada "haven't worked

"To me it shows we can't depend on Canadian oil," he added.

'It would be the height of folly if the U.S. made plans for long-term dependency on Canada. Canada is a foreign country and Canada could shut off the

The lesson of previous talks between Ottawa and Washington and of the current lack of communication is that "we don't want to depend on Canadian oil," he said. "We'll go ahead and build TAPS (the Transalaska pipeline system).

Even More Tankers

One result could be even more Alaska oil tankers sailing along the B.C. Coast than had been expected.

There is a nationwide scare about the shortage of oil and about the reliability of import supplies in the U.S.

as whipped up this su some gasoline stations had to close down and when industrial as well as residential power consumers were hit by shortages of fuel.

It has been exacerbated by the capricious behavior of the oil-rich Arab countries who are wielding a new-found weapon to seek better terms for oil sales and for a settlement of the Arab-Israeli dispute.

And it has been somewhat intensified by Canada's behavior. Ironically, Canada has only just begun to flex its oil muscles-too late to strengthen its position on the one bargaining issue where it might have had an advantage, the routing of oil from the north slope of Alaska.

If anything, its position is now weaker on the question of diverting the fankers away from the B.C. coastline.

As the U.S. feels increasingly pressed to establish new and secure supply lines for oil it needs, it is turning on the heat for a speedup in the Alaska pipeline.

Although the initial estimates have been for production of two million barrels of oil a day in Alaska, by the time the system is in operation there may be much more oil flowing through the pipeline and into the tankers.

"Five to six million barrels a day is a guesstimate for what could be coming down the Pacific coast," said the trea-

That's as much as three times the amount of oil talked about last month when Congress was debating the project and the initial capacity of the proposed pipeline would be only two million barrels, according to the oil companies.

The Senate has already moved quickly to set up a conference committee with the House of Representiatives so that joint legislation speeding construction of the Transalaska pipeline can be submitted for President Richard Nixon's signa-

If Alaska produces more than the Pacific northwest and California markets can absorb, the administration hopes that it can make a barter arrangement with Japan. The U.S. would send some

Ready and Waiting

Alaska oil to Japan and in return Japan would divert to the U.S. some of the oil it obtains from the Middle East or else-

This idea was discussed in Congress where fears were expressed that the Alaska pipeline was really a Japan pipeline, and that export of oil was planned from the start. However, the legislation being put together by the conference committee is expected to provide for exports which can be proved to be in the national interest and subject to congressional ratification.

U.S. officials are still awaiting a clear explanation of the new oil policy proposals suggested on Tuesday by Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and Energy Minister Donald Macdonald. These proposals include some form of control mechanism over the Canadian oil market, either through a tax on exports or a marketing domestic oil supplies and consideration of plans for a pipeline to carry Western Canada oil to Montreal.

One official here described this as a logical extension of the direction of Canada's policy.

"It's increasingly unfortunate that it's every man for himself in the oil area," said the treasury department official.

He said the U.S. would have liked to work out a share-and-swap agreement with Canada. Under such an agreement Western Canada would supply the western U.S. with oil and the Eastern U.S. would supply Eastern Canada.

This is pretty much the way things were done in the past.

Canada delivered oil to the Pacific northwest and to the midwest and the U.S. supplied oil to Montreal along a pipeline from Portland, Maine.

However, Canada is now talking about supplying Montreal with Canadian oil, and the U.S. is already feeling shortages in the midwest and east coast which would intensify if Canada reduced exports which were stabilized earlier in We've tried to talk to Canada," said the treasury official, "but we just haven't been successful. Nothing has ever come of these talks."

Action Curbed

One reason, he suggested, could be the inability of the minority Trudeau government to act decisively for fear of losing office. He said the plan to build a eline to Montreal would probably result in higher oil prices in Canada.

"Moving Alberta oil to Montreal in the end means an awful lot of transportation costs. As an insurance policy in case there is a shut-off of foreign supply it makes more sense." he said.

"But there is a price you have to pay for economic self-sufficiency."

However, despite the lack of negotiations, on the Trans-Alaska scheme or other proposals for sharing oil resources, the U.S. has been getting "the message from Canada loudly and clearly," said the treasury official.

"I've got the very distinct impression from officials of the Government of Canada that it reserves the right to allocate oil as it sees fit.'

The response here is: "We don't want to depend on Canadian oil. We'll go ahead and build the Transalaska pipeline system. It's a secure supply of oil."

There is now little chance that Canada can do much to negotiate the Alaska oil tankers away from Puget Sound and the Strait of Juan de Fuca. In fact it may be increasing the environmental dangers by stinging the Americans into greater shipments there.

Solutions

Regarding the knotty problem of strikes and labor relations. The law at present is that when collective agreement contracts are signed between management and the union representing the employees these are legally enforceable and subject to breach of contract damages if violated before termination of the contract period.

However, after expiry of the contract work may still continue but the employees may cease work without risk of being sued for damages. This enables management to stall on negotiations as they have been accused of doing during the rail strike. It seems that legislation is needed such that work must cease by law when a contract expires if a new contract has not been negotiated. This would put pressure on both management and employees unions to renew contracts.

In the case of essential services such as railways, hydro, etc., the law should include heavy financial penalties on both parties if contracts are not renewed on

Only when this also fails should Parliament intervene. - H. S. Thuillier, 2424

60 YEARS AGO From the Times of September 10, 1913

Nearly six million dollars worth of Toronto securities were sold in New York in one month. Sounds incredible, to be sure. But apparently the capitalists of the American city were willing to pay higher prices than the magnates of London, hence our desperately loyal city of Toronto decided to have "some truck and trade with the Yankees". But if a farmer wanted to sell a sack of potatoes or a barrel of apples in the same place, the foundations of the empire would be shaken to their very foundations.

Having Oil Is the Issue of the Future

OPEC is on the move again, which on past performance foreshadows higher wellhead prices for the world's main supplies of crude oil. The 12 nbers of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Counries are to meet in Vienna at the middle of this month to sider the effects of inflation on their existing agreements with the big oil companies. This can hardly result in anything but a demand for more

Like everybody else, the oilproducing countries are alarmed by their losses through inflation. Unlike many others, they are in a position to do something about their complaint because, as general, Abderranman Knene of Algeria has pointed out eneral. Abderrahman Khene "having oil is going to be the main issue of the future."

Until ently, control by the great international oil companies of the huge Middle East re-serves also made oil a cheap fuel - far cheaper than it ought to have been in terms of wise conservation of total energy resources. Production costs of Middle East oil average about 10 cents a bar rel at the wellhead, as com-pared with 51 cents in Vene uela. 82 cents in Indonesia $1.31 in the United States and, according to the Canadian Pe-Association, about $1.80 in Alberta.

These figures (except for Canada) are given in an article in the current issue of Foreign Affairs by Jahangir er in the Iranian ernment and now chief of country's conomic mission in Washington. He argues technology of the modern industrialized world has essentially been based on the cheap oil policy — "an economic myopia of incomprehensible dimensions." What is needed is realistic co-operative negotiation re cognizing the long-neglected interests of the oil-producing countries, particularly in the Middle East. A confrontation would only drive these countries to a determined use of their oil as a political weapon, as some of them, notably Libya, have already begun to

Non-Arabs

The OPEC countries, moreover, do not have any political interests in common. A third of OPEC membership (includ ing Iran, the second-biggest producer) is non-Arab, with 45 per cent of the group's total production and 25 per cent of reserves. The Shah of Iran on recent Washington categorically that Iran ould never use oil as a political weapon.

And although the Arab countries control enough of the oil supply to cause havoc by turning off the tap, they are far from united in purpose or outlook. CAUSES SERVICE DELAYS

A Nice Saturday Morning

It was "a good session," according to Gerald Warren, the White House statement issuer. "It was just the thing to do on a Saturday morning," said J. March Thompson," press secretary to the vice president. They were referring, of course, to the meeting between President Nixon and Agnew, and the notes of that meeting support these accounts of the conversation as bland pudding. Here are the official notes from the White House leak secretary: Nixon began by saying he was glad he had to fly back to Washington from California in order to grant Agnew request for this meeting, because he always liked an excuse to spend the Labor Day weekend far away from the crowded beaches and highways of California. He asked if Agnew had anything special on his mind which he wanted to discuss.

Agnew replied that he was feeling somewhat embarrassed. This, he said, was because there had been something important he had wanted to talk about when he asked for the appointment, but it had since slipped his mind, and he as darned if he could remember yet

Nixon urged Agnew not to worry about his lapse of memory. It was quite common at their time of life, he said. In fact, he said, he had just been saying to his wife, Pat, last night that he had to go back to Washington to see a fellow named Agnew, and he couldn't for the life of him remember who Agnew was. Agnew said that was not so bad as his own memory failure, since the president did at least remember this mornng who Agnew was.

The president laughed and chided

Agnew for leaping at conclusions. In fact, he said, he was still, at that very instant, unable to remember Agnew was. He asked Agnew who he Agnew said he was the vice president of the United States.

Nixon replied that he had been reading about the vice president in the newspapers lately. He gathered that Agnew must be unusually preoccupied these days, he said. He was flattered, he went on, that at such a busy time Agnew could find time to drop in and chew the fat with a fellow who was just president of the United States.

Agnew said he couldn't think of a nicer way to spend a Saturday morning.

Visibly pleased, Nixon clapped Agnew on the back and said he agreed that a chat like this was just the thing to do on a Saturday morning. He had always been fond of vice presidents, he confided. He asked if Agnew was aware that he, Nixon, had once been a vice

Agnew said he had seen or heard this reported in the media, but had not known whether to believe it, being aware, as he was, of the biased distortions that were so commonplace in the

Speaking of the media, the president said, he had seen some very interesting media reports coming out of Baltimore. Realizing how biased and distorted they probably were, he said, he hated even to mention them to the vice president, but would risk a breach of good taste since Agnew had taken the trouble to pay this call.

Agnew said he, too, wanted to ask about some undoubtedly distorted media reports from San Clemente which he had seen in recent weeks, but would first dispose of the Baltimore Was it true, asked the president, that the Baltimore Colts would be a push-over this fall for most of the teams on their schedule? Agnew said he would not be pre pared to answer that question until his lawyers had finished a comprehensive review of the constitutional precedents.

Nixon said that was deeply gratifying news because it coincided entirely with his own feelings about media reports he had seen from San Clemente, Key Biscayne and Capitol Hill. Rising, he explained to Agnew that he had an appointment to see "Patton" starring George C. Scott, and then had to go to Camp. David because that was where he Camp David because that was where he Agnew thanked the president and said he could not think of a more appropriate way to spend a Saturday morning than in meetings like this. The president ident agreed that it had been a good session, as fine a session as he could remember since he had entered politics.

The two men shook hands heartily and said they would see each other in

DON'T STEAL NESSIE: SCOTS

Local conservationists threatened Sunday to toss visiting Japanese scientists in jail if they try to make off with Scotland's fabled Loch Ness monster.

The team of Japanese scientists arrived in Loch Ness earlier in the day to search for the monster, a top tourist attraction, and promptly set off the furor.

"According to an old law, it is forbidden to remove live animals and fish from the loch," one of the conservationists said with a straight face. "We intend to have it enforced if they try anything

A spokesman for the Japanese, the latest in a long line of groups to try to confirm the existence of the elusive monster, demed the scientists plan to remove "Nessie" from her environs.

"We don't want to kill or damage the monster," Miss Paki Kato, the only woman member of the team, said. "We only want to get scientifie proof the monster exists." One HOUR

COPTER RESCUES DOWNED PILOT

Buttle Lake Sunday after the Cessna 180 float-plane he was piloting crashed in poor weather conditions.

Jerry Dick, a pilot for Trans-Mountain Airways, was stranded for a day without a radio, survival gear or any rescue beacons

An armed forces helicopter picked him up at 9:30 a.m. at the 3,800-foot level of Glen Canyon and took him to hospital in Campbell River where he was treated for slight injuries including battery acid burns.

The search for Dick began Saturday afternoon when Trans-Mountain officials reported him missing on a one-hour flight to Tofino.

Two aircraft searched for six hours Saturday and three aircraft worked for several hours Sunday before the wreck was sighted through foggy conditions.

Dick said later he was forced to crash land and couldn't indicate his position to rescuers because the plane radio had been removed for repairs.

TORONTO (CP) - Gairdner and Co. Ltd. of Toronto has been holding discussions with several investment dealers "regarding a merger or the purchase of certain parts of the operations of the company," says J. S. Gairdner, chairman.

The firm is one of the largest retail brow kerage houses in Canada and has an extensive branch network.

Gairdner said the Toronto Stock Exchange, the Ontario Securities Commission and other regulatory authorities have been informed of the firm's position. "The firm meets the capital requirements of the TSE and is in a highly liquid position."

He said a further announcement is expected to be made within the next 10 days.

The Gairdner announcement follows two recent mergers of major investment firms. Last month, Dominion Securities Corp. Ltd., and Harris and Partners Ltd., both of Toronto, announced they would merge. Later in the month, Midland-Osler Securities Ltd., don, Ont., and Doherty McCuaig, Toronto, said they would merge.

Dominion Securities and Doherty McCuaig have large retail operations.

The relatively low level of retail trading activity in stock markets the last several months is said to have placed some national retail houses in a loss position.

It will require 185,000 barrels per day capacity and have only 130,000.

This translates into a tremendous amount of gasoline and other products that must be imported — about two million gallons per day or more than 700 million gallons per year.

The oil companies are convinced this production will be a vailable from offshore sources or Alberta or both. They are confident of being able to meet the rapidly increasing demand. Meanwhile, the B.C. refin-

New Dance In Whacky Flag Race

Introducing a new dance step for those whacky wonderful folks in baseball's National League Eastern Division, called the Title Tap-Out. You take one step forward and then two backwards.

That kind of treadmill pace has created a five-team scramble for the division title with St. Louis Cardinals hold-ing the lead only because they're the only team in this silly division able to play .500 baseball. Barely .500, but in this division, that's good

The Cardinals dropped their third straight game Sunday, bowing to Chicago Cubs 5-4. But they remained on top of the division because Pittsburgh Pirates managed to blow a six-run lead and lose to Philadelphia Phillies 8-7. Meanwhile, the suddenly-hot New York Mets tightened things up even more, beating Montreal Expos 3-0.

Elsewhere in the league Sunday, Houston Astros edged San Francisco Giants 5-4, Los Angeles Dodgers ended their nine-game losing streak, beating San Diego Padres 5-3, and Cincinnati swept a double-header with Atlanta Braves, taking the first game 14-6 and winning the second 7-0.

As a result of the Title Tap-Out, the Cards are still first despite a three-game losing streak and a mediocre record

Pittsburgh is second, one game out. Montreal is third, 2½ behind while Chicago and New York are tied for fourth, a mere three games behind.

"It's a great race for the fans, the players and the writers," said Mets' manager Yogi Berra. "But I'll tell you this is hell on the managers. We're getting into the ulcers

The Argo offence finally broke loose for one touchdown in the final quarter when quarterback Joe Thiesmann hit flanker Mike Eben for a 39-yard scoring pass. Andrusyshyn converted.

Ealey was thrown for losses seven times in the game, including three times in a row late in the fourth quarter.

Ealey moved Hamilton's second-quarter scoring drive from his own 39, with Flem-" ing going around the end for touchdown from the Toronto five.

The Toronto victory was costly in terms of injuries. Stillwagon suffered ligament damage to his knee during the last sacking of Ealey and linebacker Tom Surlas, just returned from the 30-day injury list, also was sidelined when he apparently re-injured the knee that had kept him out of four games

Calgary Stampeders seem to hit their stride when they take on Saskatchewan Rough

The Stampeders whipped Saskatchewan 25-8 Sunday in Reging to hand the Roughrid ers their second defeat of the Western Football Conference season. Their first loss was by a score of 23-15, also to Calgary.

In Edmonton, the Eskimos came from behind with a lastminute march to nip Montreal Alouettes 23-18 Saturday in a Canadian Football League in terlocking match. The wins left Edmonton and Calgary tied for second in the West with 4-3 records while Saskatchewan remained front with five wins and two defeats.

In both games, opposition lapses allowed the winning team to strike for one touch down on a long run. _

Calgary defensive back Frank Andruski took his second interception 105 yards to put Calgary ahead 22-8 late in Edmonton's long-run score gave them desperately needed points and an equally necesboost when speedy Larry Highbaugh re-turned a kickoff 102 yards in the third quarter. Montreal had just gone ahead 17-6 on a Peter Dalla Riva touchdown and appeared in command-until Highbaugh broke from behind solid blocking.

But Highbaugh's performance was exceeded in the final two minutes when fast thinking put Edmonton in position to start their winning Randy Bryan counted two goals for Peterborough while Paul Evans, Stan Johnathan and Bob Wasson had singles.

Ali Favored Over Norton

Muhammad Ali's era of predominance in the world of heavyweight boxing faces its most critical test tonight when Ken Norton could end it all for the former champion.

"I'm in condition, but I don't feel too playful," de-clared a scowling Ali at the Sunday weigh-in when scaled 212 compared to 205 for the San Diego fighter who beat him and broke his jaw

Ali proved he had been training diligently by weighing three pounds less than on March 8, 1971, when he lost in 15 rounds to Joe Frazier in their title battle.

"I'll win," the 31-year-old former champ declared. can't call a round, but it can't go the distance. I didn't train

The man who once quoted poetry and joked about opponents was quiet as he approached the 12-round re-match with Norton at the Forum. (The bout will be shown on closed-circuit tele-vision at Memorial Arena, starting at 6:30 p.m.)

Promoter Don Fraser estimated a crowd of 14,000 and a gate of $600,000 at the Forum, and closed circuit television could bring in another $1.5 million at 248 locations in the United States and Canada plus more overseas.

Nicklaus, who shared the first day lead with Weiskopf at 71, took a final 69 for 140 and tied at that figure with U.S. Open champ Johnny Miller. Miller fashioned a fine 67 in the last round. Each picked up $11,250.

Masters title-holder Tommy Aaron was never in it. He finished with a 73 for 149 and

COMEBACK WIN FOR WHITWORTH

DALLAS (AP) - Veteran Kathy Whitworth won the $35,000 Dallas Civitan Women's Open golf title for the second time Sunday by beating Mary Mills with a par on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff.

They tied with 213s for the regulation 54 holes.

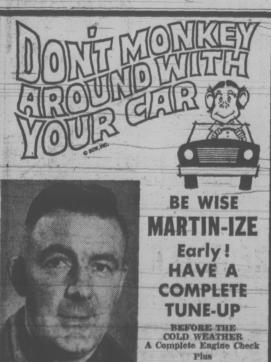

Miss Whitworth roared from deep in the pack with a final-round six-under par women's record 34-32-66 to catch Miss Mills, who held a one-stroke lead going into.

Sunday's concluding 18 holes at Brookhaven Country Club. Miss Mills shot even par 36-36-72 of her final round.

The victory, worth $4,950, boosted Miss Whitworth's season winnings to $56,010, second only to Judy Rankin, who finished far down the list with 220 to win $392.

Sandra Post of Oakville, Ont., put together rounds of 77-72-74 for a 223 total and earned $185.

Jocely nBourassa of Mon-treal shot 85-85-75—245 and finished out of the money.

Cariboo Open Golf Playoff To Panasiuk

100 MILE HOUSE, B.C. (CP) — Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., the Canadian professional golf champion, won the Cariboo Open Sunday night in a playoff with professional Tom Moryson of Bur-naby and the defending champion, amateur Bill Hobbis of Prince George.

The playoff ended on the dusk-shrouded first hole of the 108 Club course when Panasiuk tapped in a 10-inch par putt and the other two players took one-over fives.

Panasiuk, who was four strokes off Moryson's pace after Saturday's play and six strokes behind Moryson after nine holes Sunday, wound up tied at the end of 36 holes of play with Moryson and Hobbis.

ANNOUNCING YOUR NEWLY APPOINTED DEALER OF

MICHELIN'X' STEEL-BELTED RADIAL TIRES:

Yates at Cook

Whatever make car you drive - from a full-size North American model to a sub-compact import, your new Michelin dealer is fully equipped to fit your car with the precise size and type of tire it requires.

He and his staff are prepared to explain the construction and discuss the advantages of radials over biasbelted and bias-ply conventional tires. They are prepared, too, to demonstrate how and why Michelin 'X' radials represent the maximum in the value for your tire dollar.

If you consider that safety, when measured in shorter stopping distances, greater puncture resistance, improved steering control and firmer, more stable contact between car and road - under all driving conditions, is important, ask how these performance qualities are built into Michelin radials. If gasoline economy when measured in more miles from the same kind and amount of gas you're now using is the kind of "return" on your tire investment you would like to have, ask for an explanation of Michelin's radial/steel-belted construction which makes fuel saving a reality. Finally. investigate the kind of tread life you can expect. For a biased estimate ask your friends what they've been getting on their Michelins; for a more conservative estimate, ask your dealer. Either way, you will be satisfied that you can expect many thousands of trouble-free, worry-free miles.

Before you buy your next set of replacement tires, or your next new car, make a point of discussing Michelin 'X' with your new dealer. Trust him to serve you with confidence. We do.

immer of Hope in Swimming Gold

BELGRADE (CP) — There's no doubt Canada is a power in synchronized swim-

But success in other aquatic sports—mainly swimming and diving—may take longer than most officials think, although there was a sign of success Saturday night when Bruce Robertson of Vancouver won a gold medal in the 100-metre butterfly.

"I just tried to swim my own race," said the 20-year-old Robertson, a University of British Columbia student. "I wanted to take it out very fast and be ahead at the 50 and just hope I could hold on for the yest of the rect of the rest of the race.

"... I knew they were coming on late... I was just lucky that they couldn't catch me."

At the conclusion of the world aquatic championships Sunday, Canadian athletes went home with one gold, Canadian athletes three silver and two bronze medals after nine days of competition in synchronized swimming, which gave Cana-da the silver, diving and swimming. There was also water polo competition, but was eliminated earliin North American zone

Our Own Forgotten Man -The One With an Idea

One of the most interesting men I met in my recent visit to Japan was a government official in charge of inventions and patents, a Mr. Moshima, who confirmed something I've believed for many years: namely that we in Canada don't pay nearly enough attention to our crack-pots.

"Crack-pots," at any rate, is the way we most often refer to our inventors who, more often than not, are mildly or even outrageously eccentric. In Japan, on the other hand, the inventor is sought out, subsidized, honored and respected. Mr. Moshima freely admitted that millions of dollars in foreign currency are earned simply though the enthusiastic encouragement of men with no more than an idea, very often an idea that's been scorned and rejected in the United States or Canada.

A generation ago the lifting of western ideas was a lar-ceny upon which Japan built its burgeoning economy. Today they use their own ideas — the first cheap, mass-produced transistor being a good example — as one of their national resources. You may seem totally mad, but if you are Japanese and you claim to have invented something—anything—you'll be all but embraced,

The Canadian attitude, on the other hand, may be illustrated by the example of a Mr. E. C. Green, of the City of Toronto Property Department, as recounted in an obscure item in one of the Toronto daily papers. Mr. Green, it seems, designed and fabricated a toilet-roll holder which is virtually indestructible and which has been installed progressively in the city's rest rooms as vandalism has destroyed the old-fashioned toilet-roll holders. An award of $800 was made to the gentleman and that was that.

What would have happened in Japan, I gathered from Mr. Moshima, is that Mr. Green would have been given vasily more as his reward and would have been wined and dined and pried for any other ideas he might have. A company would have been approached, almost surely with a large, instant bank loan at low interest rates, the toilet-roll holder would have some into mass production, would wide trade recommends. would have gone into mass production, world-wide trade representatives, working for the government, would have gone out looking for global retail outlets and presently the toilet-roll holder would be selling brisky wherever they are toiletrolls that require an indestructible holder.

Here, of course, the inventor is left on his own, not merely to patent his invention, but to promote it and merchandise it, and since inventors are notorious introverts their ideas very often come to nought.

I have heard it said reliably that a Canadian was the first inventor of the pop-up toaster, but that he had so much difficulty in securing a patent and so little in the way of interest from manufacturing companies that finally one of the giants (Westinghouse, so the story goes) heard about the idea, seized upon it and made their millions without any payoff to the originator.

The role of the Canadian private patent attorney is one of the problems. Some, of course, seize upon every inventor who enters their office as a source of fees for filing patent applications. The more reputable firms are more inclined to be over-protective toward potential clients and to discourage the long process of seeking a patent. They have seen so many impractical inventions in working (or non-working) models that their attitude is one of excessive caution and, all too often, the crushing of the inventor's dreams.

I am familiar with the case, for example, of a local inventor who, some 10 years ago, came up with the idea of a fishing lure that worked with a sonic effect. He had tested this device for a year or more, with complete success, before he went hippitty-hop to the leading firm of patent attorneys.

To his astonishment, they advised him to go home and forget it. Inventions of fishing lures were a dime a dozen, they told him. They seldom, if ever, satisfied the patent office requirements that an invention must embody a new principle, not merely a new twist on an old principle,

Five or six years later, when sonic lures had become the hottest items in sports fishing, the inventor could only regret that he had taken the well-meaning advice.

It's unlikely, of course, that a nation which relies for prosperity on its primary resources may anticipate an economy reliant on the brain vapors of eccentrics. But that is precisely the situation in Japan where new ideas feed the insatiable demand of industry and one day it will be our need as well. Only then will the mad inventor come into his own and be a creature of honor rather than laughter.

Landlord's Side Of the Problem

By WAYNE HARDING Times Staff

While the struggle for tenants' rights has gained public attention in the past few years, landlords have begun to feel their rights are in jeo-

Take the case of L. H. Lonsdale, a Victoria man who owns a few houses which he lets out for what he believes are reasonable rents.

Last month he had to ask a family, who rented one of his houses for two years, to leave because they were wrecking the place. When they finally he found the yard filled with garbage, part of the fence torn down, a hole punched in a wall, a proken, floor tiles lifted by sitting water, a counter top ruined by cigarette burns and plumbing damaged.

He estimates it would cost him $1,000 to clean up and repair the house. But he's not likely to get it from his former tenants - who have moved to another rented accommodation in Esquimalt because they are on welfare and are never likely to be able to pay such a sum, even with a court order behind it.

For Lonsdale, it's the second unhappy lesson in being a landlord.

Two years ago he rented half a duplex to "some young people" on the recommen-dation of a businessman. A few months later, it was clear the "young people" were a motorcycle gang. They left behind a $1,100 bill for re-

There is the case of one well-known city propertyowner (who prefers to remain anonymous) who found an old home he had rented out to a defined group of youths, the couple having separated and gone their separate ways. When the landlord came to collect the rent, he was told members of the "household" lor and try to find new members from whom the next month's rent could be raised. The landlord had to bring the police along to finally get his house back.

"Cases like these are not unusual," says John Woods of Victoria's Landlord and Ten-ants Advisory Bureau. "We hear of many cases where tenants are unfairly treated but there are also cases, not as well publicized, where as well publicized, where landlords have little protection against loss."

Says a spokesman for the Greater Victoria Apartment Owners Association: "Ninetyfive per cent of the time when there is damage incurred by recover."

He adds that the problems of landlords are increasing and

"We're running into situations today that you wouldn't dream of five years ago ... its part of the permissiveness of life today."

The damage deposit seems the most likely protection for a landlord. But the Landlord and Tenant Act limits the amount of the deposit to one amount of the deposit to one-half of the monthly rent and it doesn't take much damage to exceed that. Another reasonable safe-guard a landlord can take is to make regular inspections of his property. The law requires that tenants know in advance when the inspection takes place and it should be written into the rental agreement.

The "ounce of prevention worth a pound of cure" for landlords is, of course, selecting the right tenants in the first place, the GVAOA spokesman says. He personally often turns away four prospective tenants for every one he accepts Subh discounts he accepts. Such discriminating assessment however often leads to cries that civil rights are being violated.

In a brief to the Law Recurrently reviewing the Landlord and Tenant Act, the Victoria apartment owners have called for greater protection for the landlord.

Among the recommendations, they want: the damage deposits limit to be raised to 75 per cent of monthly rent; permission for landlords to hold deposits in trust accounts; prohibition of the practice of tenants deducting deposits from their last month's rent; a check-list of the condition of a property before it is rented out. Whether landlords can get the protection they fear they are losing depends on whether their voices can be raised above those of increasingly militant tenants.

The module was researched and assembled by the provincial museum. It's sponsored by the federal and provincial governments, and the British Columbia fisheries association, with an assist from The Bay by way of a series of colorful posters.

Mary Isaacson, museum teacher responsible fro co-ordinating this interesting exhibit, is in Quesnel with it.

During a brief stay she will give teachers a run-down on what it is, how it works and why it has been assembled.

Talking to her before she left for the north with the several blue boxes in which the module is packed, I learned that it is asembled and taken apart much like a giant tinker

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 30, widowed, and has a six-year-old child. She is welljob, and makes a good salary. But, Abby, her values are certainly misplaced, and we cannot watch our grandson raised in such an environment!

Mainly, she is a terrible housekeeper. You can't imagine all the clutter. She would rather read, hike, plant flowers, write poetry, or do other useless things. Her excuse? When choosing what's important to her, houskeeping is at the bottom of the list!

She could afford to pay a housekeeper if she didn't waste money on ballet lessons and vacations.

She never misses an art exhibit, and she drags the child with her. Abby, what can a six-year-old learn from an art exhibit?

She refuses to see a psychiatrist. The law in this state allows grandparents to assume custody of a grandchild with unrealistic parents. What recommendation?

DEAR AT: I recommend that you keep hands off your widowed daughter and her child. And if her lifestyle continues to bug you, a psychia-trist will do you more good than it will your daughter.

• the leisure craftsman - by Phyllis Fiarotta

I have a few craft ideas made from one- or two-quart milk containers.

Bird Feeders starts by cutting 2-inch wide by 4-inch high holes on all four sides of a container. Take a second carton and cut away two ad-joining sides as well as the top and bottom. Staple or glue this carton to the top of the first carton, making a peaked roof. Spray paint, put a handful of seeds in the bottom carton and hang in a tree.

2. Wishing Well follows the same instructions as the feeder. Fill the opening with real or artificial flowers.

3. Twirling Lantern starts by stapling the top open spout closed. Cut a slit from corner to corner along the four corners. Bend the right side of each slit corner toward the inside of the box. Paint and hang in a tree. When the wind blows, the lantern will twirl.

What kind of coloring do you add to the glycerin and water to color leaves?

In general, the soft leaves of flowers do not cure well with any process. The tougher leaves of trees and shrubs treated with glycerin make the best background for dried flower arrangments.

Since leaves react best to the glycerin dry method, you have to live with one fact: Green leaves will undergo a considerable color change when glycerin is used. Green leaves will change to yellow olive, milky brown or deep mahogany. Different leaves have different reactions to the drying process.

If you would like to experiment with dying eucalyptus or any other type of leaf, drop it any other type of lear, drop it in a high concentration of food coloring. The food color-ing will turn some leaves black while others will delight you with surprisingly colorful

Thought Keeps Vegetables Popular

As vegetable crops reach a sort of second peak in West Coast gardens, the homemaker needs inguenity to keep the the quantities to avoid waste. keep dollar food purchases down and, as a side bonus, build up health for winter. When I suggest fresh garlic as one means of retaining in-terest in vegetables don't panic. First you need this year's garlic crop either your own grown or purchased where you know it to be fresh. Second, you must use the gar-lic lightly at first until you are convinced there are no unpleasant after-odors. Thirdly, you may have to be secretive about adding it so as not to scare the family unnecessarily. And here I would like to say that it is old garlic which has become rancid with age which gives this fine herb a bad name. Also, too much cut up garlic or squeezed gar-lic is odorous. Green beans, either the bush or climbing varieties are one of our most delicious and nutritious vegetables when boiled just enough to make them tender without losing their crispness.

Now try one small garlic clove (a section of a whole garlic bulb), peeled of its dried outer skin, and dropped in without cutting. Boil the garlic with the beans and remove it before serving.

The finding of high blood-fat levels is important for at least three reasons:

1. It may be due to a primary, inherited inability of the body to digest and utilize dietary fats. The poorly digested fats may contribute to the premature appearance of hardening of the arteries, especially of the heart and brain. Both grains had been treated with a fungicide to prevent the seed from rotting, he said. The grain had been sprayed with a bright pink dye to mark it as containing the deadly mercury compound.

Hughes, a former Beirut chief of bureau for Time-Life, returned from Iraq quoting authorities there as admittin 6,530 hospital cases of poisoning and 459 hospital deaths.
"My investigation and the

PEKING - When French President Georges Pompidou drives into Peking on Tuesday afternoon, his route along the ulevard of Eternal Peace will be strung with red slik banners proclaiming a "cha-leureuse Bienvenue" and the six days that follow will produce as rich a celebration of friendship as the Chinese leaders have laid on for any visitor from outside the Socialist camp.

But beneath the gloss of Saanich was fined a total of cordiality there will be a po tentially acrimonious dif-ference of view on the issue Europe.

Pompidou is not the first Western government leader to visited Peking, that mark having gone to President Nixon last year.

Nonetheless, a special quality will be imparted to the visit by the fact that the French president will be the first leader of a Western nation in good standing with China to have made the journey since the Communists founded their republic nearly 24 years ago.

As French diplomats here see it, it is historical justice that Pompidou should make it to Peking ahead of Canada's Edward Heath, who will make official visits in October and January respectively.

In the French view Paris earned pride of place by establishing its embassy here in 1964, a step Ottawa did not take until 1971 and London, though she recognized Peking and opened an office here as early as 1950, until 1972.

This is almost certainly too simplistic a view for the Chithat France has a claim to a special relationship that neither Canada nor Britain can

This relationship owes its existence not to the early establishment of an embassy alone, but to the whole set of French attitudes towards the world that produced it - in srort, to Gaullism.

Chairman Mao has said that De Gaulle was the only Western leader of his generation that he admired, and it is not hard to see why. France under De Gaulle, like China under Mao, strove to attain a measure of power and independence that would make it fully master of its own des tiny, a determination that found its most common expression in a passionate opposition to the role of American power in the world.

Mao never met De Gaulle, who had to shelve plans for a

Tomato Plants Do Well On Apartment Balcony

Two tomato plants each in a 12 to 14-inch square planter will provide all the ripe fruit three people can use fresh.

On an apartment or condominium balcony, vine-red to-matoes are worth much in terms of freshness and the flavor from sun warm, vine ripened fruits.

This year with rather slow spring weather, it has been good to see that the bush variety Fireball came through only a week behind the earliest date for vine-ripe tomatoes. The week following August 1st, two fruits were picked. They were full of juice, full of gentle flavor, not sharply acid as are so many slow ripening varieties.

Balconies are the ideal place for raising early delicacies to enliven bought produce. Any elevation above ground level is less subject to morning frost (up to a certain height) and often heat can be trapped to hasten growth of semi tropical plants such as eggplants, sweet peppers, okra, musk melons as well as tomatoes.

Balcony gardeners with successes will now want to prolong the season by adding new plants for winter growing and use.

Most of the recommendations for apartment balconies are just as easily grown on sundecks, especially those facing south or west. A bit more protection around the planters in hard frosts may be needed, since there will be no overhead

Padding with thick folded newspaper, surrounded by cardboard cartons is the best insulation to keep frost from penetrating to the roots through the sides of planters.

On top, between and over the plant parts above soil, pieces of evergreen stuck in before frost, or laid over the top to allow air circulation are suitable protection. String may be needed, laced across to hold the evergreen pieces against

I imagine woods moss would be useful as top insulation, but it could not be left around growth during mild wet periods nor would it be easy to remove and dry it out for second use. Evergreen twiggy branches are easily moved and put aside

For putting into balcony or sundeck planters during the next week or 10 days, the following are suggestions: young parsley plants, chervil section of horseradish (for its leaves in of mint, a growing section of horseradish (for its leaves in late winter); and seedling plants of swiss chard, perpetual spinach and winter lettuce from a friend's garden.

These are ideas for readers who have no garden space yet have a balcony or sundeck for growing a touch of green

Funeral service in McCail Bros. FLORAL CHAPEL, Johnson and Vancouver Sts., on Tuesday, Sept. It, at 1:15 p.m. Interment at Royal IN MEMORY.

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will tear no evil: for thou art with me: thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.

ou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

ely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Movies

Gentle Giant (xx), on 12 at 7. A 1968 outdoor adventuredrama about a boy's friendship with a bear cub starring Dennis Weaver and Vera

Claudia (xxx), on 13 at 8. If you have never seen Rose Franken's almost classical story of a child bride who grows up, then you are in for a treat with this delightful 1943 comedy-drama starring Dorothy McGuire and Robert Lady in Cement (xx), on 4 at 9. Frank Sinatra's back as Tony Rome in this 1968 mystery that finds the tough pricase of a beautiful blonde found drowned off Miami Beach., Raquel Welch and the fate Dan Blocker co-star.

Shoot Out, on 5 at 9. No rating available on this 1971 west-ern starring Gregory Peck as an ex-con seeking revenge on the partner who betrayed Souls at Sea (xxx), on 11 at 11. A powerful 1937 drama pased on a real life event in 1843 about a seaman faced with a tragic decision in a crowded lifeboat. An excellent includes Gary Cooper and George Raft.

Reflections in a Golden Eye (xx), on 7 and 12 at 11:30.
Marion Brando; Elizabeth Taylor, Brian Keith and Julie Harris star in this somewhat distorted 1967 film adaptation of Carson McCullers' perceptive novel about sexual turmoil at a peacetime army

Wake Island (xxx), on 2 at 11:50. A dramatic 1942 saga about the glorious but biffer defeat suffered Marines of Wake Island early in the Second World War star-ring Brian Donlevy and William Bendix.

Peyton Place (xxx), on 6 and 8 at midnight. This 1957 drama is the original film which served as the basis of the popular TV soap opera. It's actually much better than you may expect thanks to a fine cast that brings to life all the shady secrets of the New England town, made popular by Grace Metallous best-selling novel. Cast includes Lana Turner and Hope Lange.

Four Bullets for Joe (x), on 13 at midnight. A 1964 western, filmed in Germany with an American cast, about gunslinger Frank Dalton out to avenge the death of his

8:00 (FM) CBC Monday Evening-Part 1: An Evening Charles Griffes (1884-1920) - Derek Bampton, piano; Art Wiebe, tenor; The Purcell String Quartet—and Eric Schneider as Charles Griffes. With script by Peter Haworth. Three Songs Based on Poems of Fiona McLeod String Quartet on Indian Themes; Four Roman Sketches (Griffes). Part 2: Vancouver Recital - Linda Lee Thomas, plano. Partita No. 2 in C minor (Bach); Sonata No. 34 in E minor (Haydn),

8:30 (AM) Identities—The Dollar Drain Back to the Homeland: Immigrants frequently send money to their homeland. The program examines the economic implications both national and international of this dollar drain as well as the psychological implications for the immigrant laborer who sends a large part of his Canadian earning back home to support family and relatives.

10:03 (FM) Ideas-Images of the Land in the Literature of the Orient: Dr. K. Tsuruta, associate professor of East Asian studies at the University of Toronto, creates a per-spective to view the literature of the Orient as it treats the as part and apart.

10:30 (AM) CBC Playhouse 'The Mindmakers' Cunningham is an intriguing science fiction story about a scientist who discovers strong mysterious radio signals from deep space which he realizes are intelligent. But where are they coming from and are they benign or malevolent?

Early Tuesday Movies

Spencer Tracy and James Stewart star in this 1949 adventure about a pair of daring young men who combine their skills to smuggle raw rubber out of Japanese-occupied Ma-

Angel in My Pocket (xx); on 6 and 8 at 12:45. Andy Griffith plays a rural parson who tries to bring peace to a fac-tion- torn Kansas town in this 1968 western that co-stars Lee

Bad for Each Other (XX), on 13 at 1:30. A routine 1954 soap opera about a wealthy socialite who tries to convince a young doctor to practice among the town's exclusive clientele. Cast includes Charl-Heston and Lizabeth Scott.

People Will Talk (xxx), on 5 at 3:30. An excellent 1951 co-medy-drama about a doctor hose past suddenly backfires and almost destroys his happy life. Cary Grant is great as always and the supporting cast (Jeanne Crain, Walter Slezak and Hume Cronyn) couldn't be better.

Trouble Along the Way (xx), on 7 at 3:30. A sentimental and sticky 1953 drama about a football coach with a two-fisted approach to the game and life, starring John Wayne and Donna Reed.

Specials

"Fast" and "fun" are the key words in today's fastionable quick, quick crochet collection. Several terrific beginner's projects all start with a simple crochet mesh base, but are quickly transformed into floral fantastics by the liberal sprinkling of a dainty blossom cluster that you'll adore.

The vest, shoulder bag, stole and serape-poncho are all go-everywhere fashions.

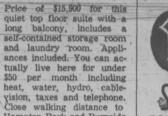

If you're a home lover, the delicate, flower-strewn afghan is bound to win. Four-ply knitting worsted or synthetic can be used and sizes small, medium and large are all given for the vest. Infant to adult sizes are given for

Draft Terms Allow Early Selection

Free Press says it has learned that a tentative agreement reached Friday with the World Hockey Association will bring the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association more than $2 million as tion more than $2 million a year in draft payments.

A Saturday report also outlines conditions under which the WHA would be allowed to draft and sign players still eli-gible for junior hockey.

The newspaper says that the WHA would pay the CAHA $50,000 for each of the first 50 players selected and have to be signed to WHA signed in its draft.

signed in its draft.

A sliding scale calls for payment of $15,000 for each of the next 40 players, $10,000 for each of the next 30 and $5,000 for each additional player selected and signed, the story

The Free Press says the agreement allows WHA teams to draft exceptional players with one or two years of eligi-bility left, and to select underage juniors in the first round of the draft only.

Under-age juniors would sent to a minor league team, the newspaper says. Underage players not signed within 60 days would revert to the next year's draft pool.

Besides the standard $20,000 draft fee, WHA teams would be required to pay an additional $20,000 to compensate the junior team from which the under-age player was drafted, the story says. The double payment would apply to the eases of Dennis Sobchuk and Jacques Locas, two under-aged players already signed by WHA clubs. Sobehuk, who played for Regina Pats of the Western

Can a da Junior Hockey League last season, was signed by Cincinnati, an ex-pansion team, and Locas, who played for Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Junior Hockey League has been signed by League, has been signed by .

Quebec Nordiques.

The newspaper says no demand was made for compen-sation for four under-age members of Toronto Mari-who signed with WHA teams The four are Tom Edur, signed by Cleveland Crusaders; Wayne Dillon, signed by Toronto Toros, and Mark and Marty Howe, signed by Houston Aeros.

The agreement was reached between WHA and CAHA of-

It still has to be ratified by WHA trustees, a step that is expected to follow a Montreal CAHA and National Hockey meeting next Friday between League officials.

Pre-Game Sellouts Blackouts

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate has passed by a vote of 76 to 6 and sent to the House of Representatives a bill to bar hometown blackouts of professional sports if the games are sold out 72 hours in

The legislation would expire one year after enactment, allowing time to determine whether telecasting some home games would result in reduced attendance, as some team owners contend. Meanwhile, National Foot-ball League commissioner

Pete Rozelle said the league might limit its television agreement with the networks to a single game each week if Congress bans local blackouts of NFL games

Rozelle told the House communications subcommittee that the NFL would have to reconsider its television policy if Congress passes the black-out ban and the 26 league clubs begin showing an attendance decline.

He said televising a single, national, game-of-the-week is "far and away the most economically-productive television by sports leagues." "The NFL member clubs themselves in an attempt to make individual arrangements for their own telecasts," Rozelle said. "And I can assure you that if that situation should come to pass, most NFT, cities would be demost NFL cities would be deprived of the away games of their home teams.'

Under the current contract, all NFL games are telecast on at least a regional basis, but the towns where the games are being played are blacked out.

Rozelle told the House subcommittee that his statement

Soviet Gags Harm Detente: U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A powerful U.S. congressman and the prestigious U.S. National Academy of Sciences said Sunday commercial and scientific agreements with the Soviet Union could be jeopardized if repres-sion of Russian dissidents continues.

Rep. Wilbur Mills (D—Ark.), chairman of the house ways and means committee, threatened to block a bill liberalizing trade with the Soviets if novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn and nuclear physicist Andrei Sak-harov continue to suffer "the wrath of the police state mentality.'

The National Academy of Sciences, which includes Sakharov as a foreign associate member, cabled the Soviet Academy of Sciences of its "deep concern" for his welfare, saying "it would be extremely difficult to imagine" continued U.S.-Soviet scientific co-operation if Sakharov were silenced.

The attack on Sakharov, who has pleaded, with western nations not to ignore political repression during the current East-West de-tente, "revives memories of the failure of our own scientific community to protect the late J. R. Oppenheimer from political attack," the cable said.

Oppenheimer, an American scientist, fig-ured prominently in development of the atom bomb. He later lost his security clearance and reputation after being accused of Com-munist leanings in the early 1950s.

Sakharov helped the Soviet Union develop the hydrogen bomb.

Sakharov, the most outspoken of the Soviet Union's domestic critics, accused the Russians of using a powerful anti-depressant on dissident physicist Leonid Plyusch at the Dnepropetrovsk Mental Hospital.

The physicist called the hospital "hell"

and referred to officials at the institution as "criminals who are injecting him with a drug called halopiridol."

Sakharov, who made the charges at a meeting Saturday with western newsmen, described halopiridol as a powerful anti-depressant that can blunt the human mind.

Soviet authorities have been trying to counter reports that political dissidents have been jailed in mental hospitals. In a recent subversion trial, official spokesmen quoted defendant Pyotr Yakir as admitting making up such reports and peddling them to the Sakharov has been nominated for a Nobel Peace Prize by Soviet Nobel Literature Prize winner alexander Solzhenitsyn in a letter to a Norwegian newspaper. Solzhenitsyn said the prize would be a big help to Russians fighting for civil rights.

Money Outlook Gloomy

WASHINGTON (AP) - The International Monetary Fund inflation Sunday, saving economic conditions in industrial countries point to rapidly-ris-

The fund said in its annual report that the major world economies are booming and making it difficult to arrest the inflationary spiral.

It urged its 126 member countries, and especially the industrial economies. "to give this problem a very high priority in the formulation and conduct of economic policies.

"The paramount considerations, of course, are that high rates of inflation impair economic performance and create economic and social inequities, currently affecting populations throughout the world," the fund said.

The report said prices in Canada, the United States, Europe and Japan rose six per cent from the second half of 1972 to the first half of this year. Combined, these economies grew by seven per cent in the same period, it said.

Countries now face the chal-lenge of slowing down eco-nomic growth without starting a recession, the fund said.

The report appeared pessimistic on whether inflation can be brought under rein.

Rowing is fun. That's what it said on the back of his T shirt when Lambert Good, 75, of 701 Esquimalt rowed into the Inner Harbor.

In spite of the fact he's rowed 147 miles from here to Nanaimo and back—since ne left Victoria a week ago, the sprightly oars-man looked as chipper as if he'd just stepped

Positioning his legs against a makeshift stretch board, a-fender and a piece of wood, he dipped his overlapping oars and seemed ready to start all over again.

He grinned as a man from the health spa e attends took his picture, he fussed until his oars were in the correct position when a press photographer moved in for a shot. "It would never do to have a seaman caught like that," he quipped.

"I enjoyed every minute of it," he reported, as friends asked for an accounting. He had a few beefs though.

One was against his native Nanaimo, where his father, the late Henry L. Good — a B.C. rowing champion in the 1892s — was MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet 79 degrees latitude north cientists set out today to esscientists set out today to es-tablish a drifting scientific station in an unexplored area in the heart of the Arctic, the Tass news agency said today.

The expedition, which left Sunday aboard the ship Captain Kondratyev, is the third the history of Soviet polar exploration to travel to the heart of the Arctic, Tass said.

Its destination was a flat iceberg about four square miles in area discovered by Soviet explorers last spring. Tass said a reconnaissance plane flew over the iceberg two days ago and dropped naflags of the Union. The iceberg is located in the eastern sector of the Arctic at

It said scientific experi-ments to be carried out there will be aimed at helping fore-cast ice conditions in the Arctic and weather conditions in a vast area of the northern hemisphere. The ship will reach the site in four or five days, it said.

A VICTORY WEISKOPF WANTED

AKRON, Ohio (AF) "This was very much a personal goal for me," Tom Weiskopf said after pulling away from Jack Nicklaus Sunday for a victory in the prestige-laden World Series of Golf.

"I've had such a tremendous year and it meant so much to me to beat Jack, who is the greatest player in the game.

"We've never really played head to head, and this is more a match play type thing. I really wanted to beat him.

"I think that's why I won."

But Weiskopf, who was making his first appearance in this elite event that brings together the winners of progolf's four major champlonships—the American and British Opens, the Masters compare himself with Nicklaus.

"I don't think you can do that. He's won 14 major championships. I've won one. He's won how many tournaments all together?'

Weiskopt broke out of a tie Nicklaus through the final round of the two-day, 36 hole match Sunday and won the $50,000 first prize with a final round 66 and a 137 total, under par on the 7,180-yard Firestone Country

Our Own Forgotten Man -The One With an Idea

One of the most interesting men I met in my recent visit to Japan was a government official in charge of inventions and patents, a Mr. Moshima, who confirmed something I've believed for many years: namely that we in Canada don't pay nearly enough attention to our crack-pots.

"Crack-pots," at any rate, is the way we most often refer crack-pots, at any rate, is the way we most often reterto our inventors who, more often than not, are mildly or even outrageously eccentric. In Japan, on the other hand, the inventor is sought out, subsidized, honored and respected.
Mr. Moshima freely admitted that millions of dollars in foreign currency are earned simply though the enthusiastic encouragement of men with no more than an idea, very often an idea that's been scorned and rejected in the United States or Canada.

A generation ago the lifting of western ideas was a larceny upon which Japan-built its burgeoning economy. Today they use their own ideas — the first cheap, mass-produced transistor being a good example — as one of their national resources. You may seem totally mad, but if you are Japanese and you claim to have invented something — anything nese and you claim to have — you'll be all but embraced.

The Canadian attitude, on the other hand, may be illus-The Canadian attitude, on the other hand, may be illustrated by the example of a Mr. E. C. Green, of the City of Toronto Property Department, as recounted in an obscure item in one of the Toronto daily papers. Mr. Green, it seems, designed and fabricated a toilet-roll holder which is virtually indestructible and which has been installed progressively in the city's rest rooms as vandalism has destroyed the old-fashioned toilet-roll holders. An award of $800 was made to the gentleman and that was that.

What would have happened in Japan, I gathered from Mr. Moshima, is that Mr. Green would have been given vastly more as his reward and would have been wined and dined and pried for any other ideas he might have. A company would have been approached, almost surely with a large, instant bank loan at low interest rates, the toilet-roll holder would have gone into mass production, world-wide trade representatives, working for the government, would have gone out looking for global retail outlets and presently the toiletroll holder would be selling brisky wherever they are toilet-rolls that require an indestructible holder.

Here, of course, the inventor is left on his own, not mere ly to patent his invention, but to promote it and merchandise and since inventors are notorious introverts their ideas very often come to nought.

I have heard it said reliably that a Canadian was the first inventor of the pop-up toaster, but that he had so much difficulty in securing a patent and so little in the way of interest from manufacturing companies that finally one of the giants (Westinghouse, so the story goes) heard about the idea, seized upon it and made their millions without any payoff to the originator.

The role of the Canadian private patent attorney is one of The role of the Canadian private patient attorney is one of the problems. Some, of course, selze upon every inventor who enters their office as a source of fees for filing patent applications. The more reputable firms are more inclined to be over-protective toward potential clients and to discourage the long process of seeking a patent. They have seen so many impractical inventions in working (or non-working) models that their attitude is one of excessive caution and, all too often, the crushing of the inventor's dreams.

I am familiar with the case, for example, of a local inventor who, some 10 years ago, came up with the idea of a fishing lure that worked with a sonic effect. He had tested this device for a year or more, with complete success, before he went hippitty-hop to the leading firm of patent attorneys.

To his astonishment, they advised him to go home and forget it. Inventions of fishing lures were a dime a dozen, they told him. They seldom, if ever, satisfied the patent office requirements that an invention must embody a new principle, not merely a new twist on an old principle,

Five or six years later, when sonic lures had become the hottest items in sports fishing, the inventor could only regret that he had taken the well-meaning advice.

It's unlikely, of course, that a nation which relies for osperity on its primary resources may anticipate an economy reliant on the brain vapors of eccentrics. But that is sely the situation in Japan where new ideas feed the insatiable demand of industry and one day it will be our need as well. Only then will the mad inventor come into his own and be a creature of honor rather than laughter.

He adds that the problems of landlords is increasing and becoming more complex. "We're running into situations today that you wouldn't dream of five years ago ... its part of the permissiveness of life today."

The damage deposit seems the most likely protection for a landlord. But the Landlord and Tenant Act limits the amount of the deposit to one-half of the monthly rent and it doesn't take much damage to

Another reasonable safe-guard a landlord can take is to make regular inspections of his property. The law requires that tenants know in advance when the inspection takes place and it should be written into the rental agreement.

The "ounce of prevention worth a pound of cure" for landlords is, of course, selecting the right tenants in the first place, the GVAOA spokesman says. He personally often turns away four prospective tenants for every one he accepts. Such discriminating assessment however often leads to cries that civil rights are being violated.

In a brief to the Law Re-form Commission which is currently reviewing the Land-lord and Tenant Act, the Victoria apartment owners have called for greater protection for the landlord.

Among the recommendations, they want the damage deposits limit to be raised to 75 per cent of monthly rent; permission for landlords to hold deposits in trust accounts; prohibition of the practice of tenants deducting deposits from their last month's rent; a check-list of the condition of a property before it is rented out. Whether landlords can get the protection they fear they are losing depends on whether their voices can be raised above those of increasingly militant tenants.

The National Academy of Sciences, which includes Sakharov as a foreign associate member, cabled the Soviet Academy of Sciences of its "deep concern" for his wellare, saying "it would be extremely difficult to imagine" continued U.S. Soviet scientific co-operation if Sakharov were silenced

The attack on Sakharov, who has pleaded with western nations not to ignore political repression during the current East-West detente, "revives memories of the failure of our own scientific community to protect the late J. R. Oppenheimer from political attack," the cable said.

Oppenheimer, an American scientist, figured prominently in development of the atom bomb. He later lost his security clearance and reputation after being accused of Communist leanings in the early 1950s.

Sakharov helped the Soviet Union develop the hydrogen bomb.

Sakharov, the most outspoken of the Soviet Union's domestic critics, accused the Russians of using a powerful anti-depressant on dissident physicist Leonid Plyusch at the Dnepropetrovsk Mental Hospital.

The physicist called the hospital "hell"

and referred to officials at the institution as "criminals who are injecting him with a drug called halopiridol."

Sakharov, who made the charges at a meeting Saturday with western newsmen, described halopiridol as a powerful anti-depressant that can blunt the human mind:

Soviet authorities have been trying to counter reports that political dissidents have been jailed in mental hospitals. In a recent subversion trial, official spokesmen quoted defendant Pyotr Yakir as admitting making up such reports and peddling them to the foreign press.

"Instead, gradualism actually granted the enemy time to shore up his air defenses, disperse his military targets and mobilize his labor force for logistical repair and movement. Gradualism forced air power into an expanded and inconclusive war will continue to do so in 1974, making it difficult to arrest the inflationary spiral.

It urged its 126 member countries, and especially the high rates of inflation impair economic performance and create economic and social inequities, currently affecting populations throughout the world," the fund said.

Toothless, Toeless Future?

EDMONTON (CP) Humans are gradually losing their small toes and wisdom teeth and are reaching puberty sooner, says Dr. Phillip Tobias of Johannesburg.

However, bodily changes are likely to have less impact on man's future evolution than they have in the past, he said in an interview Sunday

Spiritual, technological and sychological developments would be the keys to future of the human spirit such as we've never seen before."

Dr. Tobias, head of anato my at the University of Witwatersrand, specializes in human genetics, anatomy and evolution. He researched the anatomy of early man and worked with the late Dr. Louis Leakey who made arhaeological discoveries at the Olduvai Gorge in Tanzania.

Fewer people are getting wisdom teeth, Dr. Tobias said, because the jaw has in-sufficient room for growth, because of better putrition. The teeth are not needed anyway "beacuse we live on food — and there's less work for our teeth." The little toe seems to be getting smaller, possibly be-cause of the wearing of shoes and the cramping effect on feet, he said.

Girls are reaching puberty at age 12 and younger, four years earlier than a century ago, and boys are maturing at 13 or 14 rather than 16 or 17.
